The Daily News.

NEWPORT,

BY CRANSTON & NORMAN,

127 TRAFALGAR STREET.

FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 11, 1851.

The Home Journal commences a new volume on the first of January next. This is the best family paper in the country; it is edited by G. P. Morris and N. P. Willis, two of the ablest and most popular writers in the land, who devote their whole time and attention to the paper. It is useless for us to attempt to designate all the attractive and valuable features of the Home Journal; it is strictly and emphatically a family paper, and contains a vast amount of profitable reading matter. No family should be without it, for it always contains something to improve the mind, and store it with useful knowledge. The publishers will make many improvements in the new volume, which will render it more than ordinarily attractive. Send on your subscriptions to Morris & Willis, 107 Fulton street, New York. Price, only two dollars per year.

We have received Godey's Lady's Book for December. Its embellishments are, "Dress—the wearer," "Dress—the maker," "The Reconciliation," "Christmas Cheer," "The Frézen Mill," two pages of Music, Model Cottages, &c. The articles are from able and favorite writers, upon the usual variety of subjects. The new volume commences with the January number, and Godey promises to make many improvements, and, among others, to increase the amount of reading matter in each number. He has also engaged a host of new and popular writers for the coming year.—The Book deserves liberal patronage; this is a good time to subscribe.

Graham's Magazine for December is received. Its illustrations are "The Lone Star, very beautiful," "Diana Gallery," "Highland Chief," "The Treasure," two pages of Music, &c.—The literary articles are from the pens of popular and accomplished writers.—The new volume commences with the January number, and Graham promises many new and valuable improvements; he will also increase the number of pages, the coming year. This is the time to subscribe, and the Magazine is worthy of liberal patronage. The new volume will contain many splendid and costly illustrations, as well as articles from the ablest writers of the country.—An original novel by James will be commenced in the January number.

We wonder that Barnum does not make an offer for Kosuth and his heterogeneous company, and exhibit them through the country. If they should come to Newport, we presume that the Town Council, or some of the members, would order the Police to carry them to the Asylum.

MORRIS ACQUITTED.—In the U. S. Circuit Court this morning, the jury in the case of Robert Morris, Esq., tried for aiding and abetting in the rescue of the fugitive slave "Shadrach," returned a sealed verdict of Not Guilty. Mr. Morris was immediately discharged from custody.

The remainder of the "Resent Trial" have been postponed till February.—The Court will rise in a day or two, and Judge Curtis will proceed to Rhode Island, where he will preside in the U. S. Court.—Boston Transcript.

MISSISSIPPI ELECTION.—Unofficial returns from 55 counties in Mississippi, give Foote, (Union) for Governor, 1000 majority, with 4 counties yet to be heard from. All the Union State ticket is elected, except for Chancery Clerk.

By our table of Representatives elected, it will be seen that 171 Whigs and 151 Coalitionists have been chosen thus far.

After the first trials, a year ago, the result was 162 Whigs to 159 Coalitionists.

It results, therefore, that the Whigs are now 9 better in the members chosen, than they were a year ago, and the Coalitionists stand 35 worse than they did then.

With such a start in their favor, the Whigs go into the elections of the fourth Monday with encouraging prospects of triumphant success.—Boston Jtms.

TESTIMONIAL TO THE BUILDER OF THE AMERICA.—Several gentlemen of New York are engaged in preparing a testimonial for Mr. George Steers, the builder of the yacht America, whose exploits in English waters have been so satisfactory to all Americans. A large subscription is proposed to be raised for this object.

Sleeping-rooms should have a fire-place, or some mode of ventilation besides the windows.

ORIGINAL ANECDOTE.

Shortly after the first republican constitution of the state of New-York was formed, and the judiciary system was established for the civil department, the supreme court, or that branch of it called the "circuit court," was appointed for one of the circuits, in the county of Dutchess, and the eccentric Judge Crane was to preside. Judge Crane was very wealthy and highly respected for his public and private virtue, especially for his charity to the poor; but he was always dressed in a plain garb, and could hardly ever wear an over coat, whatever the weather might be, and it was said that he rode when he went abroad, although he owned many valuable horses. On the morning of the day on which the court was to begin, the judge set out before day and walked early on through hail, rain and snow, to the appointed place. On arriving atoughkeepsie, cold and wet, he walked to a tavern, where he found the landlady and her servants were making large preparations for the entertainment of judges, lawyers, and other gentlemen, whom they expected would attend the circuit court.

The Judge was determined to have some sport, and in a pleasant tone addressed the landlady—I have no money, and was obliged to come to court, and I have walked through this dreadful storm these twenty miles. I am wet and cold, dry and hungry. I want something to eat before the court begins; when the landlady put herself in a majestic posture, and putting on countenance of contempt, said to the Judge, you say you are wet and cold, dry and hot—how can all that be? No, my dear madam, says the Judge, I said that I was wet and cold; and if you had seen me as long as I have been in this room, I think you would likewise be wet and cold. I said that I wanted something to drink and eat. But you have no money you say, retorted the landlady. I tell you the truth says the Judge, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, but were I as rich as Croesus I would be willing to work for something to eat and drink. "Croesus, who is Croesus?" says the lady. I never knew him; said the Judge, but I have understood that he was very rich. I want something to drink, and were I as poor as Croesus I would willingly go to work a little, if I could get something to drink and a bite of cold victuals. Well, said daddy, says she, how much do you want to drink? Half a gill of good brandy, madam, said he. Very well, says she, I will give you half a gill and some cold victuals if you will go into the back yard and cut and split three trunks of wood, and bring it into the kitchen, where the servants want to make a good fire to dry the gentlemen's great coats when they come, and after you get your victuals, I shall want you to go away. Well, says he, give me the brandy, and I'll soon bring the wood. I drank the liquor and walked quietly into the wood yard, where he found a good axe, and he soon laid by the kitchen fire the proper quantity of wood, viz. six arms three times full. When the landlady had got his bill, she he would cut it off—now for the good bite of victuals, says the Judge. There it is, said he coldly. And it is almost as cold as myself but not half so wet, for I eat neither tea nor coffee, nor chocolate to keep it. Beggars must not be choosers, said she. I am not begging of you, madam, said he, but have paid the tolls demanded. I told you, said she, I would give you cold victuals, and there cold boiled ham, cold pork and beef, cold potatoes and turnips, and cold vinegar pickles and soup, and if you want anything hot, there is mustard and pepper, and here is good bread, good butter, and good cheese, and all good enough for such an old ragamuffin as me. It is all very good, said he leisurely, but madam be so good as to let me have some new milk, warm right from the cow, to wet this good victuals. The cows are not milked, says she.—Then let me have a bowl of cold milk, said he. I will not send servants in this town to the sprink house to skim it for me, said she. Said he with a pleasant smile, dear madam, I have a good wife at home, older than you are, who would go out in a worse storm than this, to milk the cows and bring the milk to the poorest man upon earth, at his request; or to bring the milk from the sprink house, cream and all, without skinning to feed the most abject of the human race. You have a very good wife, indeed I have, said he who keeps me clean and whole, and notwithstanding you called me "an old ragamuffin," I am not ashamed to appear abroad in the clothes I wear, in any good company. Well, I must, confess, says she, that when you have your broad brimmed hat off, you look middling well, but I want you to eat and be off, for we want the fire to dry the gentlemen's great coats and umbrellas by; and among the rest we expect Judge Crane. Judge Crane, says the Judge, who is Judge Orange? The circuit Judge, says she, one of the supreme Judges, you old fool.

Well said the Judge, I will bet a goose that Judge Crane has not bad, and will not have a great coat on his back, or an umbrella over his head this day. You old goose, said she, I care nothing for your bet. Eat and be off, I tell you, Judge Crane is to be here, and we've no room for you. I don't care said he, one straw more for Judge Crane than I do for myself, and it has got to be so late, that if he has to come at this time of the day, he would more likely go directly to the court house, and stay until dinner time, than go to any tavern; and it business was very urgent, he would be very likely to stay away even from dinner. I know something about the old dodger, and some people say he is a rusty, infest, crusty, old Judge. Pretty talk, indeed says the landlady, about the supreme Judge. Now eat your cold check and be off, or be off without eating, just as you please. I tell you, said the judge, Judge Crane is not the supreme Judge, and if he were, he is no more fit to be a judge than I am. Well, now be off with yourself, says she—don't be in so great a hurry, said he kindly. I wish to know who is the landlord here? I wish to know where he is? He is the high Sheriff of the county, and went to home till night; but if he were here you would not stay long.

Well madam, said he give us a cup of cider to wet my victuals, if you won't give me milk. Not a drop, says her ladyship. The judge, who had now got pretty well warmed and dried, and wished for his breakfast, put on a stern countenance and positively declared he would not leave the room or fire until he pleased. But added he, if you will grant my request, I will eat and be off. The elder was immediately brought and the judge partook heartily of the collation before him, took his broad brimmed hat, and gently walked to the Court-house, where he found good fires and clean floors, and, during the court hours, he presided with dignity and propriety. When the Judge withdrew, the landlady anxiously looked after him, for some time, as he walked steadily on towards the court house, supposing him to be some poor man summoned up to court as a witness, or some culprit, or some vagabond, who might give her further trouble, in time of courts, and expressed to her servant's a desire that they would see that he did not disturb the gentlemen and the judges, who might put up there. While some of the girls declared, if he did come, they would use some of his own expressions which he used respecting Judge Crane.

Let me see, says one, "rusty, crusty," yes, and "blotchy old fogey," says another. Concluded to-morrow.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.

The Republic of this morning says that no official information in reference to the imprisonment of Mr. Thrasher, at Havana, has been received by Government, nor has any complaint been made on his behalf by his friends.

The Tribune asks the Whigs—Have we arrived then at the paring of the ways?

In 1818, immediately after Gen. Taylor's nomination, the Tribune came to a fork of the road and bolted. Most unfortunately it came back, across lots, with all manner of thorns, burs and trash sticking to its wool. It is now inquiring for another fork.—Roch. Am.
